Get Your Ice Pure. The ice that is offered to the public this year by the Gate City ice company has one very strong recommendation for its use. It was all cut above the water works plant at Florence and is therefore as pure as water will freeze. There is a very swift current in the river at this point, so that no foreign substance can freeze in the ice cut from there. De-liveries are being made now regularly and those desirous of the best ice in the market should place their order with the Gate City ice company. Mrs. Longshore-Potts, M. D., the Famous Philadelphian, to Lecture

More than a quarter of a century ago eight brave and original Pennsylvania girl students appalled medical traditions and dumbfounded the medical world generally by formally graduating from that famous justitution of learning, the Woman's Medical College. One of those identical brave girls is to lecture here. She is Mrs. Anna Longshore-Potts, M. D. Some years ago she became convinced that people get sick for want of physiological knowledge—a belief es-tablished by years of successful practice. She commenced lecturing to women only in her drawing rooms on Archi st. Her addresses to women were so favorably received that the gentlemen became interested and she delivered a series of lectures to both sexes. Her fame spread and she visited all the large cities throughout the north and as far west as San Francisco, where she appeared in the spring of 1882. She then sailed for New Zealand and spent two years there and in Australia, when she sailed for London. Her lectures in the antipodes were presided over by our consuls and the titled functionaries detailed by England ns governors for her colonies. She com-menced her lectures in London at St. James' great hall—the largest and most aristocratic auditorium in the English metropolis-where she was introduced by General E. A. Merritt, then United States consul general. For over two years she drew crowded houses in don, and gained the friendship of the mosi cultured and fashionable people, Her receptions in Portland Place centers of attraction for the social and literary lights of the city. Two years ago she returned to America, making her first appearance at Tremont Temple, Boston. She then lectured at Chicker-ing hall, New York, and also in Brooklyn. She is a Quakeress though in point of elegant costumes she rivals the wealthiest daughters of fashion, Few women have gained such great distinction as she has or accomplished so much good. The press all over the world is unanimous in her praise. She has recently scored magnificent victories in Chicago and St. Louis, when she was the recipient of much flattering attention from the press and the public. She is to lecture at Boyd's operahouse here commencing Thursday, April 10, at 8, with an address to both sexes. Of her the Boston Herald says: "Did you ever see a gypsy woman, young, straight as an arror and as brown as a berry, carrying a pile of boards fully eight feet long on her head? You have seen her? On Tremont street? That is the one, Well, Mrs. Dr. Longshore-Potts is the mental type of the order of which the gypsy is the physical type." Next Friday at 3 she will deliver her first lecture to women only. Both initial lectures will be free.
